

THE PRODUCT

American Harvest's inventory has been thoroughly vetted by the staff, which often includes visiting local cannabis farms to learn about their growing methods and "[check in on] how happy the plants are," Mirau said. The shop offers a wide variety of products for those looking to alternate their consumption methods ... you'll find more than flower at American Harvest. Mirau is especially proud of the team's focus on helping customers with their medical needs, not just those who want to get mellow during Oktoberfest or the Christmas lighting. Two state-certified medical marijuana consultants, including Mirau and Melissa Reynerson, are always happy to educate patients about options for pain management as well as a myriad of other wellness needs. Consultants are on hand to provide additional information or videos about alternatives to pharmaceuticals for those looking to expand their knowledge base.

THE PEOPLE

Most of the employees of American Harvest are locals, so they understand the needs and wants of their regulars. More often than not, they know their customers by name, having attended school, played sports, skied, worked or shopped alongside them in this tight-knit community. The first name basis culture instantly creates a great sense of trust and loyalty that's reinforced by superior service. Mirau says much of the staff has been employed at American Harvest since its inception, making the staff a valuable commodity in Mirau's eyes. She wants to make sure everyone always feels appreciated, so she focuses on creating a fun work environment that also includes full medical benefits.
